

CULLOM'S DEATH LOSS TO NATION

Former Senator Wanted to Live to Finish Lincoln Memorial.

LEADER IN BIG AFFAIRS

Services at Home This Morning, When Body Will Be Taken to Springfield, Ill., for Burial.

"I want to live to finish my work." With these words, uttered in a voice made feeble by a long fight against death, Shelby Moore Cullom, of Illinois, protégé of Abraham Lincoln in boy-hood, member of the United States Senate for thirty years, and a leader in the public affairs of the nation for more than half a century, died yesterday afternoon at the age of eighty-four years.
The end came in the big bed chamber in the Cullom residence at 1413 Massachusetts avenue northwest, with Miss Victoria Fisher, the sister-in-law who has cared for the aged statesman for several years standing by the bed, holding between her hand the fingers of the dying man. His last words, "I want to live to finish my work," were spoken to her.

Besides Miss Fisher those present when the end came were Mr. Cullom's son-in-law, William Barrett Ridgely, former Controller of the Currency; Dr. H. P. Parker, husband of a granddaughter; Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Ryan, and the family servants. Mr. and Mrs.
Ryan, Mr. Cullom's next-door neighbors for twenty years, were summoned shortly before the end came, the former Senator wishing to bid them good-by.

Describes Deathbed Scene.
"The Senator turned to me just before he died and held out his hand," said John R. Smith, secretary to former Senator Cullom.

"Although he had all been expecting his death for many days, the real end came as a great shock to us all. The Senator merely shook hands with us all, and, in spite of the fact that he had been fighting death for so many weeks, seemed resigned. In fact, I do not think he realized the end was near until he saw us all gathered about the bed. He called all the servants who had been with him many, many years, to his bedside and said farewell to them.

"You have served me faithfully and well," he said. "I want to thank you."
"Then he beckoned for me and I moved closer to the deathbed. He tried to speak something. Then he just seemed to go to sleep. His death was so peaceful; just as peaceful as a little baby dropping off to sleep. We are all glad that it was so, for he had suffered greatly."

The Senate adjourned out of respect to Mr. Cullom's memory upon hearing the announcement of his death from Senator Lawrence W. Sherman of Illinois. Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, moved the adjournment. Some of the older attaches of the Senate were unable to recall an instance before where the Senate formally adjourned out of respect to the memory of a former member of that body.

The work that is unfinished with the death of Cullom is the completion of the Lincoln Memorial. Except for the completion of the monument to the memory of Lincoln, Cullom had ended all of his public duties. He was resident commissioner of the Lincoln Memorial commission and the fondest hope of his declining years was that he would gaze upon the completed monument to Lincoln, with whom Cullom, as a lad, began the study of law.

Taken Ill Month Ago.
Cullom entered upon his last illness more than a month ago. He suffered a general breakdown, the result of age and hard and ceaseless work. The trouble seemed to center in his heart, with several complications, and he had three serious spells in the last few weeks.
He became so labored that death seemed but a matter of minutes.

But three times the aged statesman rallied. The fourth spell, which came last night, was more serious than the previous three and the patient seemed to lack that vitality which had warded off former attacks. He was conscious until the last and recognized his sister-in-law, other relatives, and doctors and nurses until his life passed. Death is said to have been directly due to heart trouble.

The body of former Senator Cullom will be taken to Springfield, Ill., his former home, this morning. It will be accompanied by his sister-in-law, Victoria Fisher, and his son-in-law, William B. Ridgely. The funeral arrangements were taken charge of by J. O. Humphreys, of Springfield, Ill., an old friend of former Senator Cullom.

There will be a short funeral service at the former Senator's home, 1413 Massachusetts avenue northwest, this morning. Rev. Charles Wood, of the Church of the Covenant, will conduct this brief service.

Funeral in Springfield, Ill.
Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—Arrangements for the funeral of Senator Shelby M.
Cullom here on Saturday were completed this afternoon. The details were announced by Judge J. Otis Humphrey, of the United States District Court. The obsequies will be held in Representative's Hall at the Statehouse. The religious services will be conducted by Rev. D. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. In addition there will be brief memorial addresses by Senator L. V. Sherman, Gov. Edward F.
Dunn, and Clinton L. Conkling.

When the casket arrives it will be conveyed to the residence of Mrs. Charles Ridgely and later it will be taken to the Statehouse, where the body will lie in state.

Beware of Boils—THEIR Very Appearance Denotes a Blood Condition That Requires
Prompt Action

At the first appearance of pimples and boils the blood should be given a good searching internal bath with S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier known to man.
This remarkable remedy has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every member of every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder, to all work to the end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid secretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the skin that cause boils and other skin eruptions.
And give us this remarkable remedy in welcome to the weakest stomach. In a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive power of a tonic that remarkable changes are observed. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health. That is the feeling of depression is lifted and the entire system responds with surprising energy.
You can get S. S. S. at any drug store, "beware" any effort is made to sell you claimed to be "just as good." If you are in a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 308 Swift Bldg.,

BATHING AS INSANITY CURE.
Some Interesting Facts Given by Dr.
Mary O'Malley.

Some interesting facts in relation to the use of water in the treatment of mental disorders are stated in the report of Dr. Mary O'Malley, in charge of the department devoted to female inmates of the Government Hospital for the Insane, published yesterday. This report shows that the use of water produces excellent results, especially when it is possible to keep the patients quiet during the day and see to it that they have sufficient sleep at night.

Bathing frequently is said to be one of the most important factors in curing the insane, and in her report Dr. O'Malley gives some interesting data.

Venerable Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Howland Fifty Years Happily Married—Husband, Employee in Postoffice, Fought Texas Bandits with Postmaster General Barleson's Father.

Mr. and Mrs. William Howland, of 429 Fifth street northwest, celebrated yesterday their golden wedding.

Twenty-five years ago this venerable couple celebrated their silver wedding at Auburn, N. Y., and a few months later came to Washington, where Mr.
Howland ever since has been connected with the Postoffice Department.
He is now lieutenant of the watch.

Mr. Howland is descended from John Howland, who served John Carter on board the Mayflower. Mrs.
Howland was Agnes Munroe, of Glasgow, Scotland, and of pure Caledonian descent. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Caledonian Club last night held a reception in their honor at Eagles' Hall.

Mr. Howland's friends at the Postoffice Department presented Mr. and Mrs. Howland with a spray of roses and a purse of $20 in gold, with a card reading: "Presented January 28, 1914, to Capt. William Howland and Agnes Munroe Howland as a token of respect and esteem by their friends in the Postoffice Department, and in honor of Capt. Howland's record as a soldier and as a citizen, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on January 28, 1864."

Mr. Howland, who is a familiar figure on the second floor of the Postoffice Department Building where he presides over the register of employees and all keys of the building, is modest and retiring, but the records of the War Department show that he has a splendid record in the Mexican, Indian and civil wars. He counts among his friends not a few of the great men of the old school who have been in Congress during the past three decades.

As a small boy William Howland ran away from his home in Auburn, N. Y., where he was born July 3, 1838, and went to Ohio. When only eleven years old he was in Cleveland, where he was employed as a clerk in the office of the late Gov.
John A. Brough, and it was there that he heard Capt. Snelling, of the Eighth U. S.
Cavalry, say that he was trying to find a boy to take as an orderly to Texas.
William stepped up intrepidly and entered his name. He was sent to Texas and William recalls many interesting experiences in the Mexican war. Stationed for some time at Fort McKavett, in Texas, in 1863, his command received orders to proceed against Cortina, the Mexican bandit, and later they were sent to establish Fort Bliss. On this expedition Mr. Howland first saw at Fort Bliss, Capt. Edward Burleson, of the Texas Rangers, whose son, Albert Sidney Burleson, is now Postmaster General. Mr.
Howland joined with Gen. Burleson's command against at Devil's River and Pecos River, little dreaming that sixty-five years later he would be serving the son of that valiant leader.

Mr. Howland tells an interesting story about how he came to the Postoffice Department. He was a family regard for the United States mail. Just before reaching Fort Bliss, the Texas Rangers had come upon a band of Indians who had captured Big Foot, Wallace, the mail carrier from San Antonio. Wallace and a companion, Capt. Walker, had taken refuge in a cave, into which they had brought the mail bags and their mail, and with the stage coach before them for protection, had stood stage for forty-eight hours. The pioneer mail carrier had in his charge letters and packets and in honor of Capt. Howland's record were brought safely to Fort Bliss by Capt. Edward Burleson and his Texas Rangers.

HOTEL POWHATAN
Washington's Newest and Safest Hotel

“Welcome” moved in with the foundation, smiles were mixed in the concrete, and conscience set every standard.

“The building is occupied entirely by Hotel Powhatan. No other enterprise can share the premises. The Hotel Lobby is our guests’ resting place, and it opens on one of the beautiful little parks for which Washington is famous.

“The soft, becalming light of an old mansion is simulated from cut glass indirect lights that seem a very part of the ceiling, as a pearl curving nestles in the ringlets of its fairer owner. And this elegantly simple effect is attained throughout the Hotel Powhatan by keeping in mind a beautiful private home. Every room radiates cleanliness, freshness, restfulness, and every ray of light, every breath of air seems happy to say:

“This Is Homelike; Just Rest.”

“Our hotel is conducted absolutely for your comfort. Truly this is the place where welcome lives.

“Restaurant a la carte of superior excellence. Music during Luncheon, Dinner, and after the Theater.

“Music! Real Music!! Not the kind that annoys, but the kind that soothes. You should hear the pipe organ with full orchestra and an occasional song.
